

MEDIA Release

30 April 2021

Endometriosis New Zealand welcomes Tanya Cooke as new CEO and we are excited that our current CEO Deborah Bush MNZM, QSM will move to the role of Chief Advisor to the Organisation.

Tanya joins us as Chief Executive in May. She brings extensive not-for-profit experience with leading charities both in the United Kingdom and New Zealand. Her in depth fundraising and marketing expertise will be critical in continuing to raise awareness and generating crucial funds to allow ENZ to continue to support tens of thousands of women and girls with endometriosis.

Tanya's demonstrated track record in operations management will ensure the path to change continues and we maintain and grow our important services and programmes effectively and efficiently throughout New Zealand.

Tanya has a huge passion for women's issues, youth, education and equality which attracted her to leading ENZ and is looking forward to this fantastic opportunity.
